The following copy, written by the father of Mrs. Douglas, proves that the rumors prevalent in relation to Judge Douglas's pecuniary difficulties at the time of his disease were true—

Perhaps it is not indecorous to say now, since all personal and political animosities towards this distinguished statesman are buried in his grave by the shores of that tideless lake he loved so well, that his embarrassments on account of his debts were extensively known a long time ago

It would then, when struggling to redeem himself, and a candidate for the Presidency, have been an exceedingly indecorous matter to have been made the subject of public gossip to his injury. But now, when his widow and his children are left unprotected for it, becomes a very different matter. Now it may be alluded to to awake the generous sentiments, and call for the generous contributions of a generous people.

It is proposed to take up contributions to provide a competency for his destitute family. We heartily approve of it, and we hope our people will join with alacrity in discharge of this debt which we all owe to his memory. It is not a charity. It is only a public recognition of the indebtedness of the people to him for his distinguished and long continued public services. How much, and for what reasons some of us opposed his political principles and his election to the Presidency, for which, with a noble and lofty ambition he doubtless struggled, it is needless now to enquire. We can only remember that in the day of our common country's greatest danger, he nobly, generously, and unflinchingly —even at the cost of his life—threw the weight of his great name and influence and party in favor of the Union and the Constitution. Without hesitation he supported the administration of his successful rival. Let the people—the people whom he so much loved—see to it that the wife and children, to whom he was tenderly attached, are not left destitute.

WASHINGTON, July 3.

To the Editors of the National Intelligencer.

I ask the privilege of making your paper the medium to convey Mrs. Douglas's and my own thanks to the friends of Judge Douglas for the generous sympathy they have manifested toward her, in the overwhelming calamity which has befallen her. It is true that owing to the depreciation of lands, the estate of Judge Douglas will scarcely pay the mortgages on the property, but Mrs. Douglas is anxious that her husband's creditors should receive to the extent of the estate their just dues.

There are few small debts otherwise due these I shall endeavor to meet as soon as possible. So long as God spares my life, my daughter and the children shall have command of such means as an unimpaired estate can provide for them. Mrs. Douglas is unwilling, in these embarrassed times, that the widow of Judge Douglas should claim more of his friends than the same true and tried devotion to his memory they have ever manifested to him in life.

I must apologize for thus claiming attention, but I have been induced to do so from my daughter's distress at observing the numerous generous and patriotic appeals in behalf of the family of Judge Douglas.

Yours, very truly, J. MADISON CURTIS.

The bustling clergy of the Old Dominion has poorly stood the test of war. The conduct of her people has been anything but chivalrous, for, instead of meeting their opponents in fair and open contest, as any people animated by a spark of patriotism, or who in the slightest degree believed in the justice of their cause would do, they have resorted to assassination, willful destruction of property and other means which have stamped them with universal shame. The following, which we copy from the Richmond (Va) Whig of the 11th, is a fair specimen of Virginia chivalry.

DAVIS ON THE UNION.—Hon. Jefferson Davis, being among the passengers on board the Steamer, on the 4th of July, 1861, he was called upon to make an address, and complied. We give from the report of the harangue the following extract.

"The great country will continue united—Trifling politicians in the South, or in the North, or in the West, any continuance to talk, or but it will be of no avail. They are like the musketees around the ox—they annoy, but they cannot wound, and never kill. There was a common interest which, run through all the described occupations and various products of these sovereign States, which beat in every bosom, there were common memories sweet to all, and though clouds had occasionally darkened our political sky, the good sense and the good feeling of the people had thus far overcome any catastrophe destructive of our Constitution. It is in this, in this, in this, in this, in this of principle which runs superior to an election or individual aggrandizement, that the foundations were laid, and if we, the present generation, were worthy of our country, that the foundations of these foundations from destruction, but build higher and wider this temple of liberty, and inscribe perpetuity upon its tablet."

It strikes us that the position of Southern custom house officers, and the very serious question of the duty of nothing to do. The old Salem custom house, described by Hawthorne, would be the busiest scene in the world by comparison.

How to do it.—A writer asks through the Farmer's Department of the Dollar Newspaper, if any one can inform a poor man the best way to start a little nursery? The Boston Times says, "certainly, get married."

They mean to raise tall students in Wisconsin.

An exchange says its Board of Education has resolved to erect a building large enough to accommodate five hundred students three stories high.

Murder, is your master at home? "No, sir," he's out. "I don't believe it." "Well, then," he'll come down and tell you so himself. Perhaps you'll believe him.

Blondie is creating a great sensation in England, and he is to receive $5,000 for twelve performances at the Crystal Palace.

"Shoonds have no pockets!"—a capital sermon to masters, in four words.

Mr. A. and his wife lived in Cincinnati.

They were blessed with a plenty of this world's goods, with a nice home, with a handsome income, and a fine family. But one unhappy day Mr. A. came home from his dinner. He and his wife had some words, and he was angry, and they parted unhappily. Mrs. A. went to the bureau where the 10,000 in gold was. She took half of it, and laid aside to Cincinnati. She arrived in Chicago last Friday morning. A teleigraph message arrived from her husband, requesting her to return as a fugitive wife. She was detained, and spent the day in tears at the police station. At seven o'clock her husband arrived, on the express train from the Cincinnati and Chicago Air Line. The train met, looked at each other, and then, without a word, they other's arms, cried again, laughed again, and made up. They left for Portland the next night, taking a sleeping car.

The Meeting of Traders Editors in New York.

A meeting of those northern democratic Editors who sympathize with the Jeff Davis rebellion, was held at the Astor House, in New York on Thursday week. Of the one hundred and sixty democratic papers in the State of New York, not to say anything of the adjoining States, only eleven were reported to be present.

Mr. Ben Wood, brother of Fernando, and editor of the New York News was the chief fugler of the resolutions passed were gross treason, as much so that Mr. Williams of the Hudson Journal, who was present, expressed his disgust. He said that the convention would be the end of the editor of the Albany Journal, who was present,
